Field of the Invention The present invention relates generally to LED (light emitting diode) light source devices, and more particularly, to an LED light source device with adjustable light intensity. 2. Description of the Related Art An LED light source device generally includes a circuit board and a plurality of LEDs. The circuit board has circuit devices, such as a driving circuit or a dimming circuit, mounted thereon. Each LED is electrically connected to the circuit devices of the circuit board. When the circuit devices are driven, the LEDs generate light. The color of the light generated by the LEDs is very sensitive to the characteristics of the LEDs. It is important to maintain stable light intensity of the LEDs. There are mainly two methods for adjusting the light intensity of LEDs. One method is to use a variable resistor or potentiometer to adjust the current flowing through the LEDs. However, this method only adjusts the overall brightness of the LEDs, and cannot adjust the light intensity of the LEDs. The other method is to apply Pulse Width Modulation (PWM) to adjust
