Let $f: B^n \setminus E \rightarrow \mathbb{R}$ be ϵ -differentiable at $p \in B^n \setminus E$. Is it true that there is a neighborhood N of p such that f is ϵ -differentiable at every point in $N \cap E$? My attempts were based on finding a neighborhood N of p such that f is ϵ -differentiable at every point in $N \cap E$. I realized that if $N \cap E$ is empty, then it is true. But, I have no idea how to get around the case when $N \cap E$ is not empty. I would really appreciate if someone could suggest me a different approach or give me a hint.

September 29, 2011 Take a Look at the News on CARBON: Some of the news stories about Carbon include: • 6th Mass on Carbon: It seems that every month or so, the 6th Mass on Carbon sets up a new photo. On Sept. 9, the wind and solar power installed was 350 MW. That was equivalent to the consumption of about 5,500 U.S. homes. Along the shore of the 6th Mass on Carbon, the largest solar array in the world stands with 945,000 solar panels, the equivalent of 18 wind turbines. In the world, there are currently 13,000,000 wind turbines and 2,200,000 solar arrays. • Carbon's Wind Farm in North Dakota: Carbon now has its second wind farm, in North Dakota. This is the largest wind farm in the United States. It has 28 turbines, each with blades 130 feet long. That's enough power to run about 19,000 homes in North Dakota. The company says it is so successful because it is very efficient and quiet. It can produce clean power for a small city of nearly 24,000 people, with five blades.
